

Negro Wins Second Reversal Before Supreme Court

First Given Death Penalty Then Life, Gets Another Chance

IS FOR SAME CAUSE

Admitting of Purported Confession in Testimony Cause of Reversals

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—For the second time the Supreme Court today reversed the case of Robert Bell, youthful negro convicted of the murder of Julius McCullum, St. Francis county white boy. The reversal was based on an error of the trial court in admitting a purported confession which evidence showed was obtained from Bell by force. The case was reversed the first time for the same reason.

On his first trial, Bell was sentenced to death, and on his second trial was given life imprisonment.

Bell and Grady Swain, another negro boy, were accused of drowning the McCullum boy and a negro, Elbert Thomas, in a bayou in St. Francis county.

The two negroes were first tried jointly in St. Francis county and Bell was sentenced to death. The Supreme Court reversed the case because it found the confession admitted in evidence had been obtained from Bell by force and under physical fear while he was in the penitentiary here for safe keeping.

The cases were separated and sent to Woodruff county on a change of venue. The cases were separated, Bell tried first, and given a life sentence. The confession was again admitted in evidence and the Supreme Court again today held this was erroneous.

The negroes were alleged to have taken $20 from the Thomas negro before he and the McCullum boy were drowned.

Former Hope People Back for Brief Visit

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Gean and "Sonny Boy" came in Saturday night for a brief visit with friends here. They were en route from Searcy to the State Fair at Little Rock. Yep, that's right.

Mr. and Mrs. Gean established the Daily Press in Hope and were here for a couple of years, moving to Searcy after they had sold their interest here in the deal which consolidated the two Hope papers.

Of course, it wasn't any nearer from Searcy to Little Rock by way of Hope. Nor were the roads any better. But a longing for a sight of the faces of old friends and a chance to look at a live town once more was a temptation they could not resist. They left this morning for Little Rock, to take in the Fair for a day before returning home.

Pastor Bitingly Assails the D. A. R.

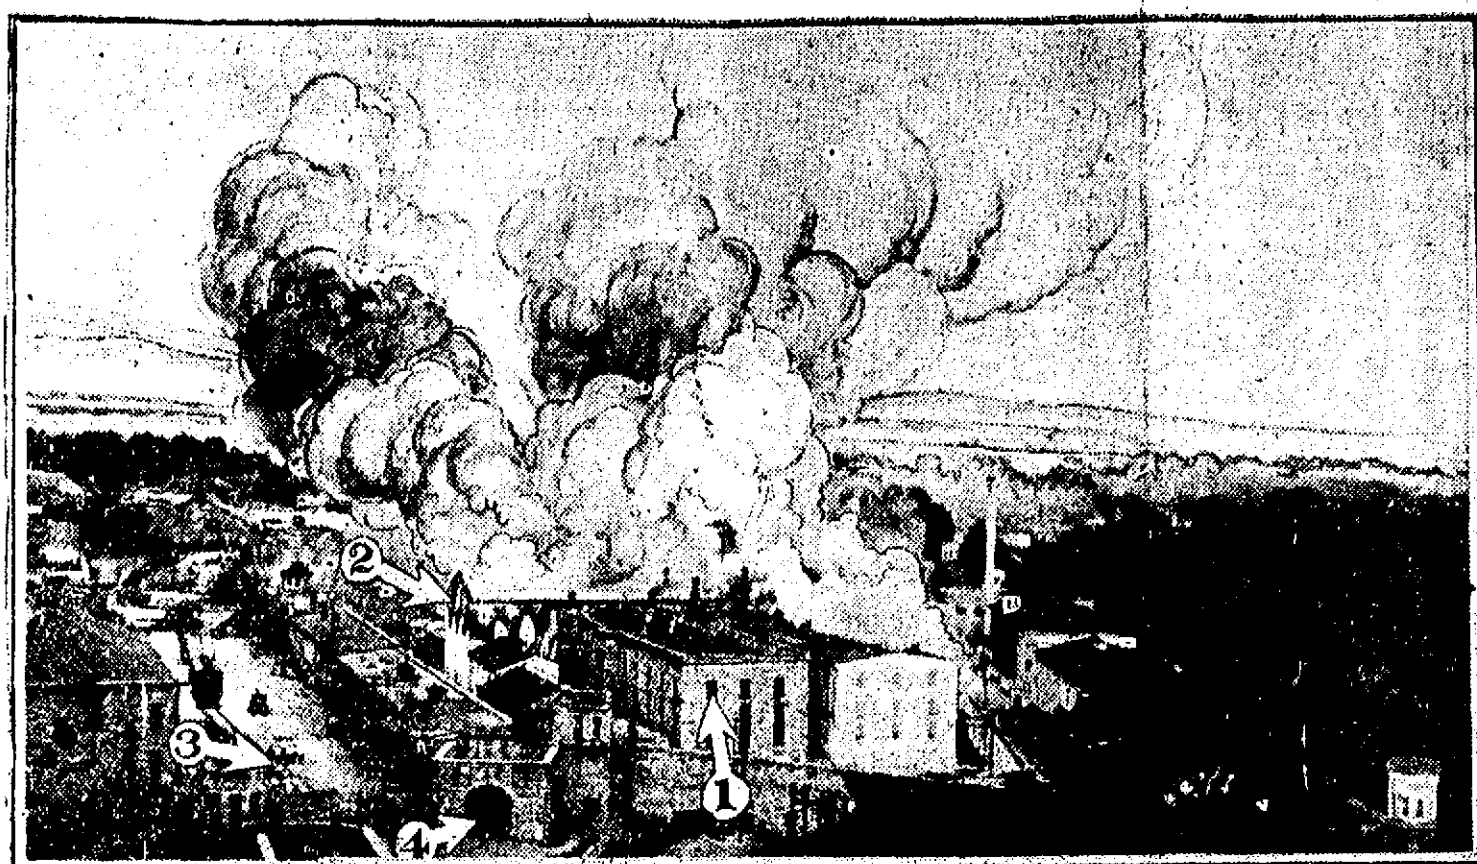

Says "Bunch of Old Women Basking In Unearned Increment."

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 7.—The daughters of the American Revolution were assailed yesterday by Rev. William L. Stidger at Copley A. M. E. church in a sermon in which he suggested a Senate investigation of the D. A. R. and kindred organizations "which have allowed themselves to be made tools and accessories" of William B. Shearer.

Mr. Stidger said that "the next institution to be investigated ought to be the D. A. R., a lot of old ladies who sit at home basking in the unearned increment of dead ancestors, satisfying their sense of self importance by sending forth the stupid propaganda of war and allowing William B. Shearer to use their organization as a cat's paw to rake the hot coals out of the fire."

"It is a significant thing for the nation to know that William B. Shearer, now under investigation by the United States government, is the man who launched an attack a short time ago against the Federation of Churches in America. "This same man also used the Daughters of the American Revolution to flood the land with the propaganda of enmity against President Hoover, sending forth a statement branding his delay in building the cruisers as unwarranted, unsafe and unconstitutional and condemning any limitation of 10,000-ton cruisers."

Dance Party Has Serious Accident

One Still In Hospital As Result of Saturday Night Wreck.

Riding a Dodge truck home from a dance at Fulton Saturday night, a party of merry-makers came to grief four miles east of that little city when the truck left the road and overturned. One of the party, a young man named Eobo, is still in a hospital here, suffering concussion of the brain, while the rest of the party, all injured, went home after receiving treatment.

Bobo and a young man named Foster were both brought to a hospital here after the accident. Foster going on home after his wounds were dressed. There were six occupants of the truck and all of them were bruised and cut. Bobo has regained consciousness two or three times but relapses into a coma again. Physicians say his condition is believed to be not serious and he will be all set again within a few days.

Absence of a "curve eliminator" on the truck, loss of which made it impossible to straighten out a kink in the Hope-Fulton highway, is given as the cause of the accident.

Caraway Heads Lobby Committee

All Members Named Opposed To President's Tariff Ideas

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—A subcommittee of five, headed by Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, was named by chairman Norris of the Senate judiciary committee today to conduct the lobby investigation. The four others named were Walsh, Montana, democrat, Borah, of Idaho, Robinson, Indiana, and Blain, of Wisconsin, republicans.

Four of the five committeemen belong to the republican-democratic group of independents opposing the pending tariff bill. A report on lobbying activities in connection with this measure is expected to be taken up first.

Ireland Hard Hit By Wind Storm

British Coast Suffers Lash of Storm and Heavy Rains

LONDON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Wind storms, with gusts of wind between 50 and 60 miles per hour velocity, struck the British Isles over the week end and did considerable damage. Portugal and Brittany also suffered.

Several streams in the mountain districts swelled by torrential rains accompanied by wind storms broke bridges, flooded villages and destroyed homes and property. Great damage is reported along the coast, with lighter craft and small shore structures light construction being damaged. Ireland was hard hit, County Tyrone reporting highways and lowlands flooded and many cattle drowned and crops destroyed.

Texas Rangers Kept To Target Practice As Only Excuse for Gunfire In 'Reformed' Borger

BORGER, TEXAS, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Texas Ranger Captain Frank Hamer, here helping the soldiers enforce martial law, is displeased with one of his pistols.

Saturday, while hunting a still Captain Hamer watched Ranger Sergeant M. T. Gonzales fire a .22 calibre rifle at a black spot on a smokestack 31 paces away. Gonzales never before had shot a .22 and missed the spot about three inches.

"Hell," the captain said, "I can do better than that with my .45." He pulled "Lucky" from the holster and fired one shot. The slub penetrated the stack less than an inch and a half from the target, the size of a half dollar.

"Something wrong with this pistol," Hammer said. "Guess I've worn down the sights carrying it around in its holster."

Borger's transition from a "free" oil town of 10,000, with a murder on an average of every six weeks, to a peaceful community has been accomplished by national guardsmen virtually without mishap.

Only two shots, both accidental, have been fired since martial law was declared here last Monday. Khaki clad patrolmen direct traffic with the ordinary back talk from motorists. Drinkers stay at home and lock the doors before imbibing. The lady barbers have discarded their pajamas.

Dry Winter Ahead. The town seems to be in for a cold, peaceful, "dry" winter since District Attorney John A. Holmes was assassinated September 12, the invasion of Texas Rangers and the subsequent arrival of the military, many changes have taken place. City and county officers have been deposed. Numerous bootleggers and questionable women have obeyed orders to "leave town by sundown." Saturday night, ordinarily the night on which oil field workers came to town for their fun, has become the "nicest" night of the week.

The police court docket Saturday showed only two arrests for intoxication, and both of those before 7 p. m.

Borger knows, fairly definitely, what the future will bring if mayor Glenn A. Pace, Sheriff Joe Ownbey, Police Chief J. W. Crabtree, and other city and county officers resign. Martial law will be lifted. Governor Moody, who declared military rule because his investigators told him an "entrenched criminal ring" and a "conspiracy" between peace officers and criminals existed here, has suggested the resignations more than once.

He withheld a proclamation of martial law until it seemed the resignations would not be made. Now, with martial law ending its seventh day, Brigadier General Jacob P. Wolters, in command of the town, was announced that winter uniforms have been ordered for the enlisted men, of whom there are 83.

It generally was understood that unless the resignations are offered by Thursday, the guardsmen will prepare for winter duty.

Brigadier General Wolters returned from Amarillo late Sunday. While there he spent more than two hours in a hotel room with Colonel Oscar Roberts, judge advocate; Ranger Captain Hamer and other officers.

DeAnn Miss Is Off On State Fair Trip Represents 4-H Club Girls of County for Excellence of Work.

Miss Opal Samuels, of the DeAnn 4-H Club, won the free trip to the state fair and will represent the girls of Hempstead county 4-H clubs at the state's big annual exposition. She is one of the entrants in a style show Thursday, at the club encampment, exhibiting the proper dress for a school girl.

Miss Samuels has an exceptional record to show for her three years of club work. In 1927, she won a trip to Fayetteville as well as a neat sum in cash premiums at the Southwest Arkansas Fair that fall. In 1928 she was again winner of premiums, this time in clothing and canning, and again represented her club in the club congress.

This year, she has done even better work. Her school dress contest won her a trip to Fayetteville, and at the Fair here was awarded $22.00 in cash premiums for her clothing and canning exhibits.

The Fair management at Little Rock is official host to the club girls at the encampment, the Missouri Pacific providing free transportation for those winners who reside in its territory.

Style Show Plans Near Completion

Event for Wednesday of Next Week Exciting Much Interest.

Plans for the Style Show and the Window Carnival of Fashion, both of which are to be staged on Wednesday, October 17, are rapidly nearing completion. The merchants who are going to present the ultra-correct feminine apparel—and the correct men's apparel, too, are already beginning to receive garments ordered specially for the occasion. Some of these stores have already turned in a list of the young ladies who will serve as models, under the direction of Mrs. Talbot Feild. The Style Show is to be presented at the Saenger theatre.

Other Hope stores in all lines of business, are making plans to enter the Window Fashion Carnival, with unusual window trims which will reveal all that is new, all that is correct in apparel, in furnishing, in drugs, in hardware and in automobiles. These windows will be veiled all day Tuesday and Wednesday, the two days before the spectacular event. They will be unveiled promptly at 6:30 Wednesday evening, Oct. 16 for all to view their wondrous. The Hope Boys Band will play and parade from 7 to 7:30 and the style show will start at 8 o'clock.

These two events, cooperative efforts on the part of Hope merchants to demonstrate the variety and completeness of fall stocks of goods, are being arranged by Hope Star and Saenger theatre.

Engineers Reorganized To Meet Hoover's Plans

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—A readjustment of army engineers designed to carry out President Hoover's plan of decentralization of the vast river and harbors and flood control work throughout the country were announced today by Senator Good.

Fall On Trial In Old Bribery Case

Despite Ill Health Former Secretary of Interior Appears In Court

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Though his attorney had announced the health of Albert B. Fall would not permit him to stand trial, the former Secretary of the Interior today appeared in court to answer the charge of bribery growing out of the Elk Hills, Cal., naval oil reserve lease.

Shortly after Fall appeared Judge Hitz, of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, overruled a motion to dismiss the indictment on the ground that it constituted double jeopardy. Judge Hitz then said to Fall: "I understand you are pleading not guilty."

"Yes," replied Fall's attorney. The judge then began to place the jury in the box. Of the original venire of 26 none were definitely accepted, the panel exhausted and another ordered summoned before noon.

Fall Terms Circuit Court To Convene Tuesday Morning

Selection of Judge To Preside At Term Matter of Argument

DOCKET FEW CASES

Criminal Side Mostly Whiskey Cases and Clean-Up Expected

Tomorrow—Tuesday—morning at ten o'clock the October term of Hempstead Circuit Court will get under way, first business being selection of a presiding judge to direct affairs of the term in lieu of Judge McCollum, who is ill.

Grand and petit jurors have been summoned and all defendants, most of them accused in connection with prohibition violations, been notified to go to court today by Prosecuting attorney Steve Carrigan is determined to clear the slate of all matters it is possible to try.

No cases of major importance. Mr. Carrigan says, are docketed for the term, more interest centering about the scope of the grand jury's inquiry than about the actual trial of cases already set.

Sheriff Dorsey McRae, ill some time following a series of operations, hopes to be on the job Tuesday morning, not for active field work but in the office, able to direct the efforts of his deputies.

No Highway Suit In 67, Is Report

W. S. Atkins Denies Star Story of Pending Legal Action

No formal suit is contemplated by property owners opposing the removal of highway No. 67 from the North Side. W. S. Atkins, local attorney, announced today.

Whether an attorney was sought in the case to ascertain facts instead of launching a lawsuit, Mr. Atkins declined to say. The Star had reported last Thursday that North Side property owners had retained counsel, and named Mr. Atkins.

"What Hope needs more than suits," Mr. Atkins said, "is co-operation among all its citizens. We need a friendly, tolerant spirit among ourselves in order to make progress in a controversial matter like that just reported."

State Guardsmen To Oil Exposition

Little Rock Anti-Aircraft Squadron Showing At Tulsa.

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 7.—Roustabouts and millionaires of the oil world converged upon Tulsa today as the sixth annual International Petroleum Exposition and Congress got under way.

At the exposition grounds, thousands from many states and several foreign countries viewed the yearly show windows of the oil industry, where the range of exhibits runs from mighty 1,000 horsepower engines to delicate scale for weighing gases. The layman was there, too, and to him the exposition was revealed as a vantage point for the study of a fascinating subject.

Aviation events arranged in connection with the oil show are attracting wide interest. Tomorrow afternoon there will be a 50-mile closed course race and aerial acrobatics by Freddy Lunde, stunt flier. At night an anti-aircraft battery from Little Rock, Ark., will train its guns upon the 88th Observation squadron, which will bomb the exposition grounds.

Many Drown When Steamers Collide

Norway Coast Scene of Disaster As Boat Goes Down

VERGEN, Norway, Oct. 7.—(AP)—More than 17 persons are believed to have been drowned in the sinking of the coasting steamer Kaskum VII near Shore last night, after colliding with the Norwegian steamer Arrisinn Jaarl. The Jaarl also went ashore.

It is thought that nine or ten of the 17 lost were members of the crew, the rest passengers.

Reverend Loses Suit Against "Ma"

SEATTLE, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The $50,000 breach of promise suit filed by Rev. H. H. Clark against Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, Los Angeles evangelist and mother of Almee Temple McPherson, was thrown out of court here today at the conclusion of the plaintiff's presentation of evidence.

Sheppard Would Alter Volstead Act

Proposes Law To Make Buyer Equally Guilty With Seller

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Amendment of the Volstead Act to prohibit the purchase of intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes was proposed in a bill introduced today by Senator Sheppard, Texas, democrat, sponsor of the 18th amendment.

Senator Sheppard proposes to make the purchaser equally punishable with the manufacturer or seller. He asserted that the amendment was necessary because of a recent court decision which held the purchaser was not liable in connection with the act of transportation.

Nashville Gets Movietone Revue

Talking Pictures To Be Opened At Liberty Theatre Tonight

Talking motion pictures will be inaugurated tonight at Nashville with one of the outstanding screen musical shows of the year, "Fox Movietone Follies."

Manager Franklin Horton, who operates the New Grand theatre in this city, and the Liberty at Nashville, completed the installation of talking equipment at the Nashville house Saturday, and everything is said to be ready for the first presentation at 7 o'clock tonight.

William Fox, who was given wide publicity a year ago when he announced the signing of scores of prominent stage and musical comedy stars for the new audible screen, scored a real triumph with his "Movietone Follies"—the first effort of the screen to duplicate the musical comedy stage. All its choruses, songs and high-priced specialty numbers will be seen on the screen at the Liberty in Nashville tonight.

Making Progress In Joint Parley

Hoover and MacDonald Issue Statement Saying Progress Made

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald in a joint statement today said that gratifying progress had been made in a review of the questions which might arise to cause friction between Great Britain and the United States.

"We have frankly reviewed all questions which might cause friction between our people," the statement said. "Gratifying progress is being made and the conversations are being continued."

The statement was made immediately after the arrival of the chief executive at the White House after the week-end at Hoover's camp on the Rapidan.

Probation of Bank Official Is Order

Pleads Guilty, Gets Two Years and Probation for Time

HELENA, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Pleading guilty to embezzling $1067.40 from the First National Bank of Holly Grove, of which he was assistant cashier, Emmett J. Patterson, 33, was today sentenced to two years' imprisonment by Judge Martineau and then placed on probation for the entire period.

Probation was granted on Patterson's promise to make restitution to the bank for the shortage. Patterson told Judge Martineau that financial reverses following his marriage last April caused the theft. His salary at the time was $125 per month.

Annual State Fair Opens Today for Record Showing

Parade and Welcome Addresses Feature Opening Day of Exposition

IS STATE PRESS DAY

Editors To Hold Annual Cabaret Session At Grounds Tonight

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The ninth annual Arkansas State Fair opened this morning with a colorful parade which was followed by the crowning of the State Fair Queen by Governor Parnell. Ideal weather prevailed throughout the day.

While the gates of the grounds were thrown open the crowd for the most part remained down town to see Miss Mary Campbell, of Little Rock, crowned Queen of the Exposition.

Governor Parnell officially opened the Fair with an address of welcome after the parade reached the grounds. Other welcome addresses were made by Mayor Pat Robinson and Ross Lawhon, of Little Rock and North Little Rock respectively.

Several concerts down town were given by bands coming in to attend the Fair and others will be given during the afternoon at Fair Park. A rodeo is on the cards for the afternoon. Other features of the program includes judging of the various exhibitions in the agricultural, mechanical and textile departments.

Final touches were given this morning to the various booths which filled several large buildings. The livestock and poultry showings are exceptional.

Members of the Arkansas Press Association will stage their annual cabaret banquet at the Exposition grounds tonight.

Grand Jury Will Look Into Escape

Bank Robber's Get-Away On Horse Seems To Excite Court's Suspicion

PINE BLUFF, Oct. 7.—(AP)—A thorough investigation into activities at the state prison farm in Jefferson county and particularly of three recent incidents was ordered by Circuit Judge T. G. Parham in his charge to grand jury here today.

Attention was directed especially to the escape Saturday of Geo. Terry, doing time for participation in the robbery of the People's Bank here, of the killing of Warden George Goelzer and the death a few weeks ago of Walter Maxwell, listed by officials of the farm as suicide.

Terry was serving a term of 14 years for his part in the robbery of the bank. Saturday he escaped from the Wright plantation on a horse owned by the state.

"I am not saying anything did happen," Judge Parham said, "but if there was any scheme to allow Terry to escape I want you gentlemen to present that fact to this court."

Penney Manager To Convention

C. R. Evans Off To Dallas for Fall Session of Store Managers.

C. R. Evans, manager of the local J. C. Penney Co., store left Saturday night for Dallas where he will attend the fall convention of the J. C. Penney co., to be held at Hotel Baker. The convention opened today and continues for the balance of the week.

"The fall convention this year," said Mr. Evans, "will be largely devoted to sales promotion, in line with the gold star sales contest recently inaugurated by the company. This contest is not only to increase sales but to improve service to the public by bringing individual clerks in closer contact with the entire organization, thus, giving them a better understanding of efficient selling methods."

"This year has already seen the greatest growth ever made in the development of the company. More stores have been opened than in any previous year, and sales are larger than ever before."

Mr. Evans states that four days of the convention will be given over to conferences with individual members of the convention committees and to buying.

The Skyscraper's Limit

EXPERTS employed by the American Institute of Steel Construction report that it is structurally possible to build skyscrapers 2000 feet in height.

They add, however, that the "economic limit"—the height at which the builder gets the maximum return for the money he has invested—is considerably lower than that. On high-priced land, the experts estimate that the most profitable height will be between 60 and 70 stories.

"For all practical purposes," say the experts, "the physical or engineering limitation upon possible building heights has been removed by the flexibility of structural steel, terra cotta and other modern building materials, and by the astounding developments in elevator and foundation engineering. Competent students of the problem estimate that if it were not for economic factors it would be possible to build, and operate successfully, an office building 2000 feet in height."

We may eventually come to these 2000-foot towers, at that. So far, there seems to be no check in the tendency toward taller and taller buildings. One is inclined to gasp when one thinks what the city of tomorrow may look like.

But there is another angle from which the skyscraper needs to be studied. Two thousand feet may be the physical limit, and 70 stories may be the economic limit, but one question remains to be answered; what is the greatest height that is good for the city in which the building is to be erected?

New York is just beginning to wonder if the skyscraper is an unmixed blessing. It enables an enormous amount of activity to be concentrated on a relatively small plot of ground; yet this concentration is bringing terrific problems. It causes awful traffic congestion. The mere job of getting people to and from the building is proving a worse puzzle every year.

It may be that existing skyscrapers are already too tall. The thing needs to be studied thoroughly.

Physical Force

A SUBSCRIBER writes to a Chicago newspaper protesting against an editorial which condemned the Carolina "night riders" who beat up Communist textile strikers.

"Was communism," asked the subscriber, "ever checked by means other than physical force?"

Someone ought to refer that questioner to the career of Louis XVI, one-time king of France.

There wasn't any communism in Louis' day, but there was an 18th century counterpart of it. Once a group of discontented agitators marched to Versailles, demanding bread. Louis took one look at them and hanged the two ringleaders to a gallows 40 feet high. He believed in using physical force to check communism.

A few years later Louis was beheaded by revolutionists. His 40-foot gallows had been a bit ineffective.

The Chicagoan's question really ought to be reversed. It should read: "When was communism, or any other form of social discontent, really checked by physical force?" The answer, of course, would be: "Never."

War—Or What?

ONCE more the Russians have sent an ultimatum to the Chinese, warning that any further hostilities along the Siberian front will bring instant retaliation. Yet, even so, it would take the seventh son of a seventh son to say whether there really is a war going on now in the far east.

If any other two nations were involved it would be war. Certainly it has all the appearances of one. Two good-sized armies are fighting one another—somewhat intermittently, it is true, but rather seriously. A good many men are being killed. A good deal of property is being destroyed.

Yet everybody seems to agree that it isn't a real war. And the chances are that after a good deal more fighting, a good deal more bloodshed, the thing will be settled. War will be "averted"—after several thousand soldiers have been killed in action.

It's too much for us to figure out.

Pike County Steps Out

PIKE county, Hempstead's northern neighbor, famous for mountain fishing and diamond mines, has the honor of being the first to install the county unit system of public education in Arkansas.

If you read The Star's editorial a week ago Saturday, you will remember that the State Department of Education is making a strenuous effort to consolidate all the local school districts by counties, substituting a single county board for the many district boards of the present system.

The purpose, of course, in this wholesale consolidation, is to conserve what school revenue is now available, obtaining more efficient results before asking for additional tax money. This is the most laudable purpose ever declared by any state bureau. Moreover, it is a welcome sign to the voters of Arkansas that there is still some intelligence in high officialdom.

Particularly exasperating has been the record of state politics in the last eighteen months, when a state income tax was advocated and adopted, with an avalanche of misrepresentation on both sides. This newspaper, for instance, opposed that tax, and we presume the epithet "tax dodger" was meant to apply to ourselves when it was being handed around the state so freely. Our opposition was not to the tax, as such, but to the character of the politics by which the bill was enacted into law. Politically-minded school men and other lobbyists conspired to put this revenue bill across—which they did, without regard to the actual needs of the schools, and certainly without any attempt to first remedy the structural defects which disinterested schoolmen freely admit are the gravest problem confronting the public school system of Arkansas. The State of Arkansas is still angry over the proceedings of the last legislature, and the reaction has yet to be accounted for in the next state campaign.

That the income tax will not be an issue in that campaign, this newspaper stated many months ago. We opposed the tax before its enactment, but when it became a law we were no longer interested. If we couldn't be the tax doctor, we at least wouldn't run with the undertaker. We are not a party to the tax repeal movement, and we believe the wisest course for Arkansas today is to improve her public school system so that the new revenue will be spent to the best purpose. That is why we are interested in what happened the other day in Pike county. Since the publication of our editorial "All Generals and No Privates" September 28, the State Department of Education has given us some figures on what Pike county will save by consolidating its schools.

Under the county unit system, Pike will be able to dismiss 25 teachers and save $15,000 in pay roll. It will save another $3,000 through centralized buying of public school supplies. And yet a high school education will be given to hundreds of Pike county children who were denied it under the old, decentralized and extravagant system.

Extravagance—the most caustic work in the dictionary of a democracy! And yet it has been going on right under our nose in every one of Arkansas' seventy-five counties. The state didn't know, and didn't care—until the income tax law crashed over the horizon.

The tragedy of extravagance in small things is that it so often reaches up to the things that obviously count. We find the demoralizing effect of Arkansas' local public school organization reflected in a weakened state university and colleges. Because of an ill-constructed system of administration, Arkansas has too few high school graduates; and because she has too few high school graduates, the state hasn't enough college-bred men and women—which is a real drawback to progress and prosperity in this day when the level of education over the United States is the highest in history.

University of Arkansas bulletin No. 7 of this year says: "The total number of Arkansas students attending college anywhere is small as compared with other states. This number can be increased only as the high schools in the state turn out a large number of graduates."

"In Arkansas the number of high schools is very small as compared with the number of such schools in other states of equal or greater population, and consequently the number of high school graduates in Arkansas is small."

This is the measuring-stick for Pike county's achievement. It is a very great one—and should be the signal for prompt action by half a hundred counties that are larger and richer, but apparently less alert.—Alex. H. Washburn.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—"If you want to go to college, as nearly a million young Americans are doing this month, Uncle Sam will tell you how."

It isn't difficult and it isn't expensive, according to a 136-page booklet, entitled "Self-Help for College Students," published by the federal bureau of education.

Last year more than 1000 institutions of higher learning offered college education to about 900,000 students. Since 1920 the average college student probably has spent $700 a year for a college education. These and subsequent figures were worked out by Dr. Walter J. Greenleaf, the bureau's specialist in higher education, who says that economical college men and women spend less than $700 a year.

How the Expenses Run

Tuition averages $184 a year in men's and women's colleges, but only $134 in coeducational colleges. Board and room, usually the largest item on the student expense account run from $108 to $850 per school year, the average in coeducational colleges being $281. Minimum expense for a college year of 36 weeks averages $547 in the four-year colleges and universities. That does not include travel, clothes and off-campus amusements. In nearly half of such colleges, Dr.

Greenleaf says, $500 will pay the entire expenses of an economical student.

Forty-six per cent, or nearly half of all college men, are making some effort to earn at least a part of their expenses. One out of every four college women is contributing to her own support while attending. Of all college students one out of every three was at least partially self-supporting during the year 1927-28. One-tenth of all college students in that year, according to Dr. Greenleaf's figures. College men and women earned $32,500,000 during their term time in 611 institutions reporting. The average amount earned was $169 for men and $149 for women.

The bureau of education book lists colleges and universities of over ten countries, their rates of tuition, board and room charges and other fees. It tells all about student loans and about so many of the available scholarships.

Buying education on the installment plan has become popular and many agencies are making "character loans" to students whom they believe to be good risks. In 282 colleges and universities funds aggregating nearly $4,000,000 a year are lent annually to students at an average of 6 per cent repayment beginning within a stipulated period after graduation. Dr. Greenleaf presents a list of student loan funds in the United States.

Considerable space is devoted to describing the various means by which students are earning money. Many students are engaged in trades. There are paper hangers, carpenters, plasterers masons helper, house painters interior decorators, window dressers, substitution operators, radio announcers and insulation expert, photographers, watch repairers and shoemakers working their way through college.

Some of 'Em Cut Hair

"Barbering requires little time to learn, can be done in spare time and is fairly profitable when done either in local shops or independently in the college room," one is advised. The vogue for bobbed hair has given many college girls work, cutting hair, shampooing and manicuring in beauty shops.

Dressmaking, engineering, millinery, and factory work offer possibilities.

Many students drive taxis, act as chauffeurs or run light delivery services. Others act as auto mechanics, wash and grease cars or tend filling stations part time. Some give driving lessons or sell automobiles and accessories.

BARBS

One of the great dangers of the hatless fad for men occurs when a lady walks up to you in a department store and asks where she can find the bloomers.

The glory of the landscape is in its trees but that isn't what men look at when they're riding in street cars.

News of Other Days

From the Files of the Star

25 YEARS AGO

Judge Z. T. Mayton, of Sardis, was in town yesterday, returning from court at Washington.

Novelist

Set me as a seal upon thine heart, as a seal upon thine arm; for love is strong as death; jealousy is cruel as the grave; the coals thereof are coals of fire, which hath a most vehement flame. Many waters cannot quench love, neither can the floods drown it: if a man would give all the substance of his house for love, he would utterly be condemned.—Song of Solomon 8:6-7.

MODIES of the MOMENT

THIS SKIPPER COULD HAVE SPANKED A MAMA WHALE!

Captain Boyd . . . he almost spanked a mama whale.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5.—(P)—When traffic in the Gulf of Mexico becomes so congested that a 60-foot mama whale collides head-on with a 10,000-ton steamship and then stands on her head, it's high time something should be done about it. Captain Harry T. Boyd, master of the Morgan Line steamship Momus, is the latest victim of the habit of inconsiderate whales ignoring the ancient traffic signals of the sea. Captain Boyd steamed into New Orleans from New York recently, the survivor of a collision with a gigantic mother sperm whale, one of a school of ten whales, who was conducting her 20-foot-mite of a baby daughter squarely across the steamer lane.

Whale Stands on Head The steamer was doing 17 knots when it hit the lady whale in the neck. The crash dyed part of the Gulf of Mexico a bright red and it stood the mama whale in a position no lady whale with any dignity at all likes to occupy—square on her head, with her tail protruding 40 feet in the air. And Captain Boyd doesn't like it at all. He's been going to see for more than 40 years and it's the first time any whale, lady or gent, has ever tried to trip him up when he had the right of way.

Baby Whale Nursing "When I first saw the school of whales, I called to some of the passengers," says Captain Boyd. "Suddenly I saw one of the whales right in front of the bow. There seemed to be a 20-foot baby whale alongside her. Then I saw that the baby whale was getting its early nursery supper. I think the big mother whale must have been asleep."

The mother whale squarely, some 15 to 20 feet back of her nose.

"No, sir, there wasn't any shock. I know a 60-foot whale is big. It would feel like the Leviathan if you got it on a fish line. It would look big in a parlor. But it isn't so big in the Gulf of Mexico. And a 10,000-ton steel steamship is bigger."

"But what did happen was strange enough. The baby whale swam away like a streak. But the mother whale stood squarely up on her head. Forty feet of her stuck out of the water like a flagpole. I suppose the shock of the Momus hitting her, either stunned or paralyzed her. But there she stood on her head.

Could Have Spanked Her "The upraised tail of the whale was level with the upper deck. I was standing at the rail and could have reached out and slapped the whale on the tail a she slid past. I'm sorry now I didn't. It would have been the first time anybody ever spanked a lady whale under those conditions—or under any other."

Still standing on her head, her tail still 40 feet in the air, the whale slid along the whole starboard side of the Momus, and was left astern. Presently the whale began to wriggle a bit and then disappeared beneath the surface.

Missouri Village Makes Valiant Stand to Prevent Watery Death

LYNN CREEK, Mo., Oct. 5.—This village of Linn Creek has made its last stand for existence. And these hillmen of the Ozarks, discarding the weapons of their grandfathers in fighting for liberty, have sought the protection of the courts to prevent their homes from being buried under water.

Two injunction suits have been filed to prevent the building of the Bagnell Dam, monster hydro electric project. This is a project to hollow out the valley of three counties, forming a giant lake, one of the largest in the nation. If the dam is built nothing will be left of Linn Creek but its $25,000 school house.

The rest of the village will be submerged 30 feet deep. The school house will sit upon a hill surrounded by water.

One of the suits asks that the company be restrained from erecting the dam. The company already has more than 1700 men on the site of the dam, engaged in preliminary work on the site.

This number is to be increased to 4000 when the work is fully under way.

The dam, when completed, if the fight of the men of Linn Creek is lost, will inundate 60,000 acres of land, 40,000 acres of which are in Camden county. It is not a matter of stopping the modern wheels of progress, the citizens of Linn Creek said as they filed their suits.

"If this thing goes through, it will make a wilderness out of the remaining sections of the county," Morgan Moulder, prosecuting attorney and representative of the people said.

Of the 501 persons living in Linn Creek, more than half of them were born there. Many of their parents and grandparents lived in Linn Creek before them.

When the project was first talked of Linn Creek rebelled. Blood ran high. They were not only prepared to prevent such a disaster to their homes by court suits but by force.

But physical revolt against the "intruders" as the builders of the dam are referred to, did not materialize. Citizens banded together to carry the matter to the courts.

All legal rulings to date have been against the citizens. The two injunction suits filed are the last hopes of the people of Linn Creek.

Gum Gives Him A Hole In Two

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 5.—Ex-Mayor George E. Trudel, ardent golfer, has given the rules committee something to mull over during the winter.

After making a tee shot Trudel discovered the ball clinging to the face of his club, attached by a piece of chewing gum. The rules say a ball once in play may not be touched by the player's hand until it is in the cup.

Trudel's solution was simple. He walked to the green, tapped the club against the side of the cup and climbed the par-five hole in two. He explained that only his love of fair play deterred him from claiming a hole-in-one.

AUTHOR OF "RICH GIRL-POOR GIRL," ETC.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Helen Page feels hopelessly in love with her guardian, Leonard Brent. A chance meeting with a dying beggar, Charles Nellin, causes Brent to change his plans for Helen's future. Soon after he tells her that she is the only grandchild of a millionaire, Cyril K. Cunningham, Brent takes her to Cunningham and offers proofs which the lonely old man accepts. Hoping to make up for the injustice done her mother, Cunningham showers the girl with affection and gifts.

Among Helen's new friends are Eva Ennis and her brother Robert, who falls in love with her. Brent finds another locket like the one he had taken from Nellin to prove Helen as the heiress. He also becomes jealous of Bob and plots to secure Helen for himself quickly. Hearing the doctor say that a sudden shock would kill the old man, Brent gets the servants out of the way and rushes into the sick room shouting wildly that Helen has been killed. His plan works and when the attendant returns, Cunningham is dead. Then Brent appears as friend and former guardian of Helen and takes charge of arrangements.

Brent tries to break off a love affair with Eva without arousing Helen's suspicions. Meanwhile, a chance meeting between Helen and Bob reveals their love for each other, but she tells him she has promised herself to another. Next day Helen goes to New York to ask Brent to release her and finds Carmel Segro there, acting very much at home. When Brent returns, Carmel throws herself into his arms before he sees Helen.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXX
Carmel was in Brent's arms. She had flung herself there before he could stop her. But he was used to her impulsive demonstrations and generally accepted them without fuss.

Now she went a bit farther than usual. She twined her arms around his neck, forcing his head down until she could press her lips to his in a lingering caress.

Something of the fascination she had always held for him stole over Brent and he embraced her with a touch of gusto that filled the heart of the watching girl with longing for the whole situation.

Carmel made the most of her opportunity and did not let him go until she knew it would be too late for him to explain the scene away as just a little greeting between old friends.

Then he saw Helen.

Carmel had released him and stepped aside to allow him to enter the living room. On her face was the famous smile of the canary-fed cat.

For a moment, when Brent's eyes took in the erect figure of the girl whose eyes flared at him with utter scorn, he too stood still, silent in his consternation.

Helen made the first move. She flung out a hand, as though she pushed away an encroaching danger, and started toward him, to pass through the doorway where he stood to get to the outer door.

Brent caught her by the shoulder and held her with a grip that hurt. Behind him he could hear Carmel's soft laughter as she vanished down the hall to another room.

"Helen," he cried, "wait, dear, wait!"

Helen looked at him with an expression that would have shivered his pride had he had any of the kind that could be shriveled.

"I won't let you go until you hear me," Brent went on, and Helen knew that truth lay behind his words. She could, of course, wrench herself away by force and rush from the apartment without giving him a chance to offer a defense of his conduct, but her conscience forbade it.

After all, she too had kissed someone else. And while she had still been engaged to Leonard, her sense of fairness compelled her to curb her outraged pride and try to become calm enough to listen to him.

A thought that he might be in a position similar to her own came to her, bringing an immensely quieting effect. How simple that would be—if he were in love with this other woman!

Brent was somewhat dazed by the smile she turned upon him. The chameleon-like change in her complexion. But his hands did not slip from her shoulders until she said that they had best have a talk and turned back to the living room.

He let her go then and followed, to take a seat beside her on the pale green leather divan. He let her start the conversation.

"I'm sorry I intruded upon a date," she said, a little stiffly; "but you probably won't have any trouble fixing it up."

She opened her bag and brought out the engagement ring that he had given her. "This will convince her that there's nothing between us any more," she added, holding out the ring to Brent.

He took her hand instead and curled her fingers over the flashing gem. "Let me explain," he begged; "you mustn't judge me unheard."

Helen drew her hand away and laid the ring on the stand beside Carmel's cigarette holder.

"It wouldn't do any good to explain, even if you could," she said quietly; "for I came here to ask you to release me from our engagement."

"Why?" Brent exclaimed, his fear of having lost her growing upon him with alarming conviction.

"Because I love someone else," Helen answered, feeling she had a right to be direct with him. The necessity for softening the blow was gone as she saw it and she was glad that it was so.

Brent did not shrink from it as he would have done had he loved her, but he was dissembler enough to force a good imitation of pain into his expression.

Helen waited, but he said nothing. There was only an intake of breath in a series of painful gasps to tell her how her words had hurt.

"I'm sorry," she said suddenly, "that we made such a mistake, but we can be thankful for the rest of our lives that we discovered in time that it is a mistake."

Brent answered now, with great feeling. "I haven't made a mistake," he declared. "I love you Helen, and you alone in all the world."

"Please, please, Leonard. Remember what I saw!"

"Oh, my dear, if you only under-

Berlin Mayor's Welcome Fizzled

His welcome went astray. New York was prepared to give a rousing ovation to Gustave Boess, visiting mayor of Berlin. But his ship got in ahead of time, the welcoming committee was late in getting to the pier, and here you see the Herr Aberburgermeister, evidently amused at the mix-up in arrangements, as he arrived unheralded in the metropolis to pay back the call Mayor Jimmy Walker made upon him in Berlin some time ago.

A woman I've known for years; she'd kiss me just as readily at Times Square."

Helen smiled, thinking, but not caring enough to say it aloud, that she caressed had not been too casual to inspire response. Brent seemed to catch her thought.

"Certainly I kissed her," he admitted hastily. But it was just a gesture, of the kind any man of the world makes. I knew so well how little it mattered either to Carmel or to me. It is only you youngsters who attach undue importance to such things."

Helen half moved to rise. Brent pressed her back with a hand upon her arm.

"Can't you see? Nothing I might do could have any effect upon my love for you. It's simply that life has made it possible for me to take things as they come. I don't try to stop the sun from rising just because I'm in love. But I keep you apart, dear, in my mind. It is as though you were in a different world. These things might be for me but they do not touch my feeling for you."

Helen did not care for what he said. She thought it pretty cheap. She'd been blind, she told herself, not to see long ago that his life would have crusted him with a layer of sordid insensitiveness.

"It doesn't matter," she said coldly. "I've told you that I love someone else. I can't marry you now."

"You don't know what love is," Brent retorted, a touch of his real self showing through the role he had assumed for the occasion.

Helen's startled glance sought his face for an answer to his unexpected warmth.

"Some raw kid has attracted you," Brent went on, letting his feelings ride him a bit, "and you think you're in love."

Helen's anger flared up in return. "It's better than thinking I am in love with a man like you," she cried hotly.

Brent recovered himself and smiled. That smile cut through Helen's new-found sense of freedom like a knife, destroying it almost instantly. She knew that behind it lay his determination to hold her to her promise at any cost.

These photos show how Fritz von Opel, wealthy young German scientist, made the world's first flight in a rocket-propelled airplane. Above you see von Opel in the cockpit of the original ship, named "Sander Rak I" after its designer, Friedrich W. Sander. Below, with rockets spurting flame and smoke, it is roaring across a field, almost ready to leave the ground. Note the absence of landing wheels, the plane sliding along on a single, central rail under the blunt fuselage. Later, with a ship of similar construction, the daring von Opel, shown in the inset, made a six-mile flight and now is planning to cross the English channel in a rocket-powered plane.

Neill, Manager Has Announced Choice for Hurler
In Opening Fray Though Fans Believe Root and Malone To Get First Call.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7. (AP)—The Chicago Cubs, primed to lead the National League out of the world's worst wilderness in which it has wandered aimlessly for the past two years, came back to the home town Sunday in scrappy, confident mood to wind up the season, receive the welcoming cheers of 25,000 fans and prepare for the opening inter-league battle with the Philadelphia Athletics Tuesday.

If the Cubs were annoyed by the loss of the last regular season's games to the Pirates at Wrigley Field, they were worried by the fact that seven along Michigan avenue have been installed as world's favorites, they did not manage to win in the clubhouse after Sunday's games, from the lean tradition of Rogers Hornsby to the equally magnacious Mack Wilson and the cubby Leo Hartnett the Chicago players exhibited the cocky, rarin'-to-go sort of spirit that recalled the attitude of such vicious series clubs as the Washington Senators of 1921 and the St. Louis Cardinals of 1926 under Hornsby.

To justify his assertion that he isn't "worried at all about the outcome of the series," Manager Joe McCarthy came out of a shower-bath to greet the eager correspondents, chat about anything they desired and satisfy their curiosity, at least partially, but declaring that his pitching choice for the opening game is narrowed down to a pair of fastball right-handers—Charley Root and Pat Malone. The expectation all along has been that Malone would draw the first game assignment, because of his steadiness and ability as an iron man. It was figured that McCarthy would get maximum result out of big Irishman by using him at outset. Sunday night, however, although there was no official intimation of it, the general understanding that McCarthy had decided definitely to lead off with Root, presumably on the theory he is returned to his best form. He scored a 1-0 shutout in his last full game a week ago.

McCarthy, however, declared: "I won't decide positively until Monday whether it will be Root or Malone. Right now I am on the fence. I think either can win but I expect to make a definite announcement early Monday."

The Cub pilot expects George Farnshaw, strong-armed right-hander of the A's, to be Connie Mack's opening selection. Mack, however, has kept his pitching ideas very much under cover, indicating he would not decide until the day of the opening game. A number of observers expect Lefty Grove to be the starting twirler for the American leaguers and there has been even the suggestion that Mack would cross up the dopsters and start the veteran spit-baller, Jack Quinn.

To this McCarthy remarked briefly:

"I hope they do start Quinn."

Although they have had a number of casualties, the Cubs as a whole are in good trim for the series. Hartnett is definitely out of the battle, McCarthy announced, but this has been taken for granted right along. Zach Taylor, who hurt a finger several weeks ago will start behind the bat in every game.

If the way field Captain Grimm performed at first base Sunday afternoon is a criterion, he has fully recovered from his broken arm and layoff. Elwood English, shortstop, who has been out with an injured right thumb, also is ready to start.

There will be no chance for the fans or experts to further inspect the Athletics until they step on the field Tuesday afternoon for the opening game, scheduled to begin at 1:30 p. m., Central Standard Time. Confirming previous announcements, McCarthy Sunday received direct word from Mack that the A's would not attempt to use Wrigley field for a workout after their arrival Monday. The American league champions are due a

HOOKS AND SLIDES

By Henry L. Farrell

Out of the Woods
The other evening up in Hartford, Conn., a young nian named Christopher "Bat" Battallino stepped briskly out of the woods and batted the ears of Andre Routis out from under the featherweight crown.

Even before the affair was staged, Routis had expressed a longing to abandon the noble profession of boxing fr the more or less exciting business of running a cafe. He got $30,000 for this end and if he didn't figure that the whole thing was a private sale, he should be stuffed and sent to the Smithsonian Institution as the dumbest genus homo extant.

A goodly crowd was there, and it was fairly well known to all that a champion was about to be bumped off. Most of them came to see how it would be done.

aroma of well-aged Gorgonzola.
Routis could not have indicated more clearly that he was through as feather champ had he entered the ring with his hat and topcoat on, and with a valise in each hand.

He had lost to practically everybody except the hard-hitting little Harford chap, though the bouts were staged without a tittle at stake. Therefore Ba Needn't take his victory over the waning Roults too seriously. Too many other lads were there and did the same thing before Bat was fortunate enough to get in his licks.

Connecticut fans say Bat is a great little fighter. He hits like blazes. He has color (could you imagine a more colorful name?)

It is now up to Bat to step out and show tha he's champion. If he's half he fighter Young Corbett was, he'll be ready to take on Al Singer, Kid Chocolate, Benny Bass and the rest of the crowd of good featherweights. If will always stand out as just another of those things.

To Vote On Farm Board Members Next Week Plan

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(AP) Examination of Federal Farm Board members in preparation for a vote on their confirmation was completed today by the senate agricultural committee.

Chairman McNary announced the committee would meet in executive session next week, probably Wednesday, to decide upon its recommendations to the senate which administration leaders expect, will be favorable.

Mr. Leavelle, promoter, makes his second bow to the fight fans of Hope and surrounding territory on Thursday night at the tank when he stages an all-star card one in which the semi-final or the special would be good as the main event. And that's saying plenty is slated to step out with Jack Pierce, Cotton Valley, La., product who has shown here once or twice and created a mighty favorable impression. Taylor is popular and will have a crowd of followers at the ringside.

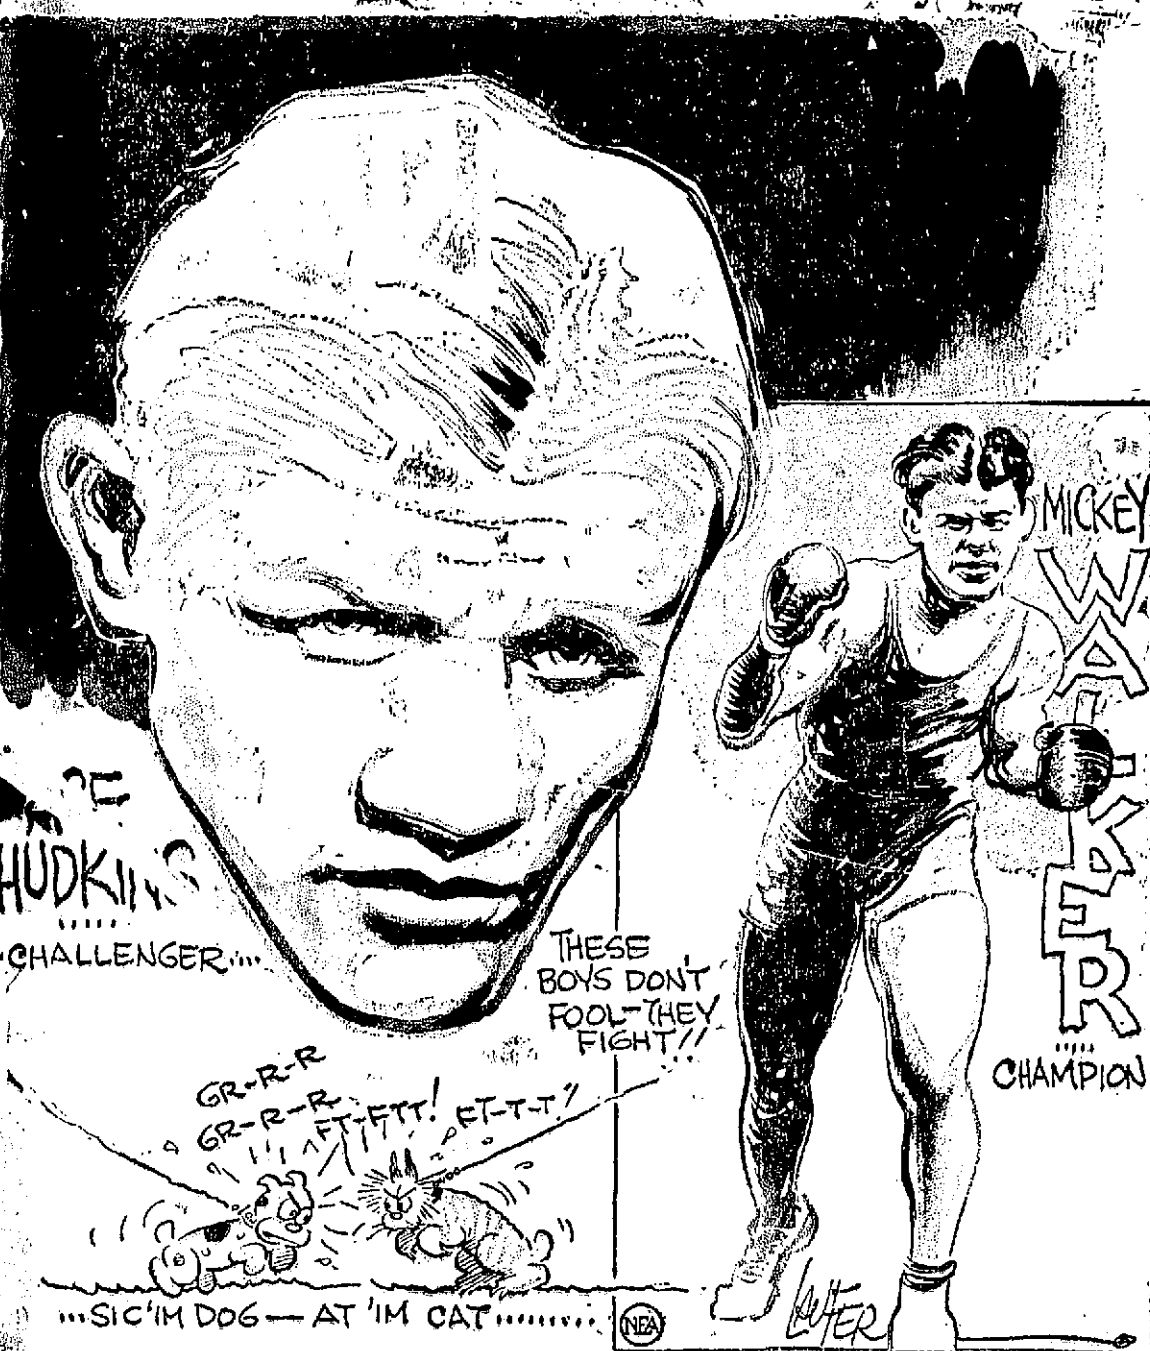

for these fight fans hereabouts are a trifle particular in their likes and dislikes and insist upon having their favorite diet plenty hot.

As the main event, Leavell has signed Jack Stacey, 140 pounder from Kansas City, to step ten rounds with Pat Malone, 143, who hails from Cleveland, Ohio. Stacey and his manager are here, arrived last night, and Malone will be in Wednesday according to advices to Leavell. Both men have wonderful youth looking into and the

And then Johnny Gelmars and Art Quillan in a six-round grudge scrap. Boy, howdy! that ought to be a wow! Gelmars slapped Quillan to sleep in their first meeting here. Then at Spring Hill, in a return match. Mr. Quillan slipped over a right—and the birdies twittered sweetly in the ears of the recumbent Mr. Gelmars. This time it is to see who is really the best man of the two and fight fans will profit by that, fact.

Leavelle announces he is trying to arrange a meeting between Stan McRae and Jack Matlock and hopes to bring the fighters to terms for a meeting here soon.

WILL Ace Hudkins be the next middleweight champion?

The Nebraska Wildcat is certain that he will. Mickey Walker, present title holder, is equally sure that the Cat won't. But the question will not be decided until October 23 when Hudkins and Walker meet at Wrigley Field, Los Angeles, for a championship.

The bout is holding the spotlight in the boxing world as one of the best "naturals" of the year, and the tearing, savage Cat matched against the lightning, crafty Walker.

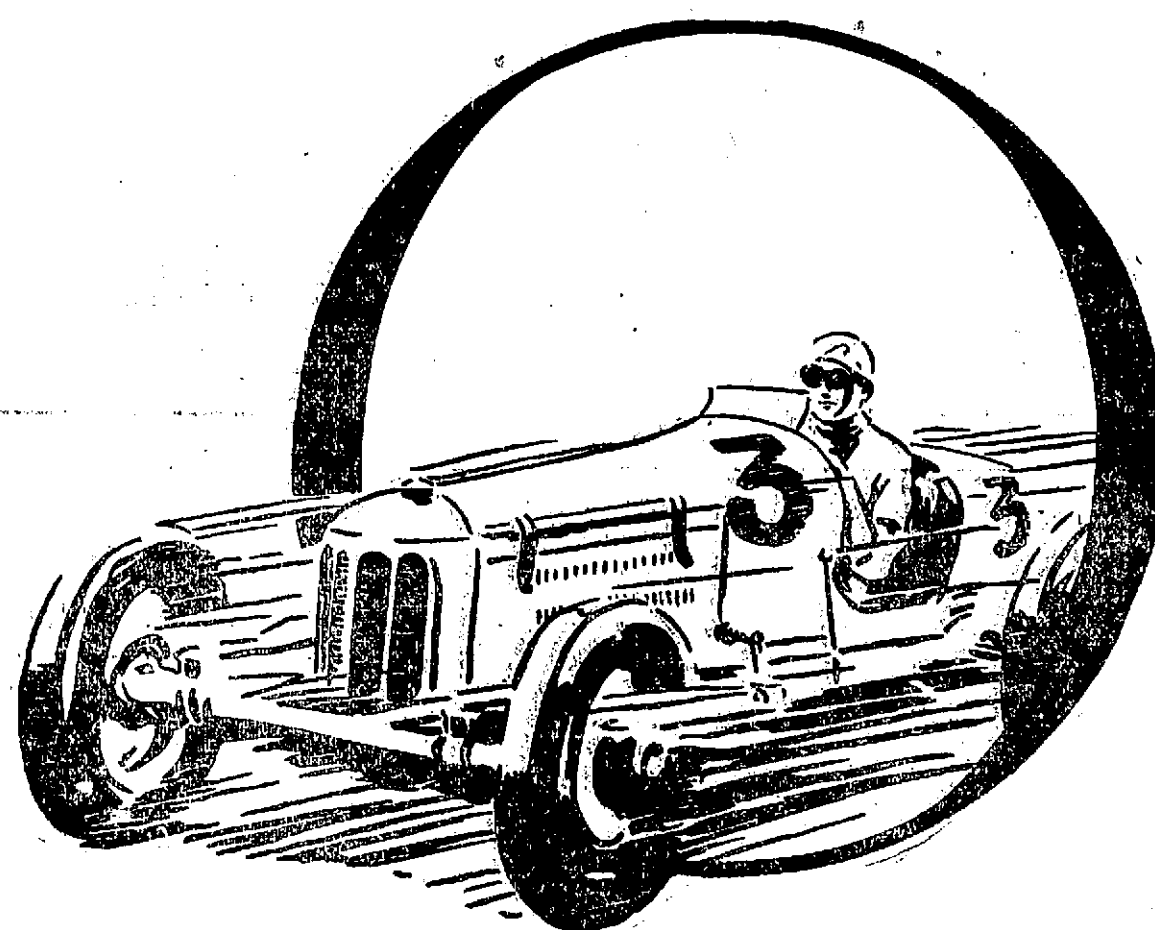

"Sure I'll beat him," says the confident Hudkins, who has recently removed the last obstacle in his path before the Walker bout, taking a sound technical knockout over Kentucky Joe Carson.

Walker has memories of a decision over Hudkins in Chicago some time ago, and is certain that he can "take" the Cat again.

Los Angeles fans are boosting Hudkins in the bout. Hudkins, always a good drawing card, definitely put himself in line for a title bout by decisively whipping Kentucky Joe Anderson. Hudkins landed a vicious, slashing attack that had Joe in a bad way in four rounds, and brought an end in the sixth.

Both Walker and Hudkins can hit and take it. Walker may hold a slight edge in betting, due to greater ring craftsmanship and greater boxing skill, but should Hudkins be timing his "one-two" with the same accuracy that he displayed against Anderson, and should his right and left hooks carry the same effectiveness, a new champion may be crowned.

SICKENED BY CONSTIPATION

Felt Dull, Sluggish, Dizzy, But Much Better After Taking Black-Draught.

Beaumont, Texas.—"Before I started taking Theodor's Black-Draught, three years ago, my health was very bad," writes Mrs. Ola Carson, of 945 Concord St., this city. I suffered constantly from constipation. I had a headache when I got up in the morning, and I felt dull and sluggish. I hardly ate a meal that my food agreed with me. Frequently I would have gas on my stomach, and felt awful. "Some days I would be so dizzy I could hardly go. I was feeling worse and worse all the time. "I read about Black-Draught, and thought it might help me. After I had taken it a little while, I felt much better. "I keep it on hand, so when I need a laxative I will have it. "In the three years I have been taking it, I have never found anything as good for constipation. Constipation dams up poisons in the bowels, causing their bad effects to be felt in other parts of the body. At the first sign of constipation, take Theodor's Black-Draught. Only 1¢ a dose. 84-229

When the Bull Scored

The bull doesn't always get the worst of the bargain, as this remarkable action picture shows. Here you see Pedro Chicuelo, famed Spanish matador, threatened by death in the arena at Malaga recently as the enraged bull caught him at the end of a furious charge and tossed him high upon its horns. Only armor saved the matador from being fatally gored.

DeAnn Community Singing Death Knell for Scrub Bulls In That Area

A report from the committee working in the DeAnn community to place a pure bred bull shows that they are making real progress in that they are getting most of the citizens to take shares in the animal. "We believe that the more people we can get to take shares in the animal the more people will use him with their herds," stated Will Burke when discussing the progress which was being made.

It is delightful to imagine what improvement could be made in our dairy cattle in one year's time if every calf were from pedigreed bull.

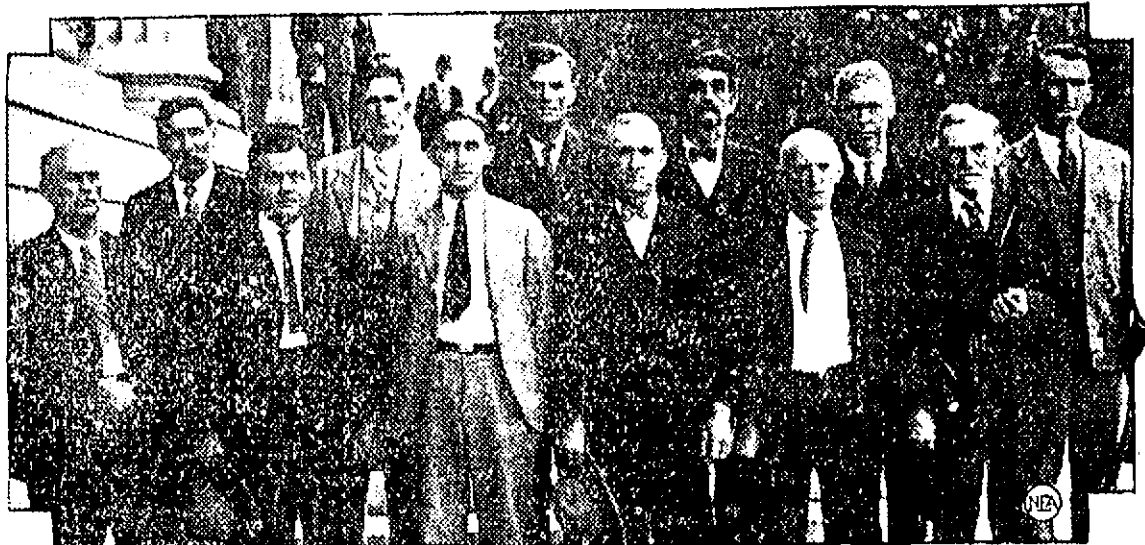

The belief prevails among some folks that what cows we have are good enough, but if we study the course which has been pursued by the successful dairyman we will note immediately that he has always selected his herd sire with the utmost care. It was not enough with him to get an animal which was registered or was eligible to register, but he wanted to know about the production of his ancestors and especially about the production of the Bull's dam and if his sire's sisters. The ability of a sire to stamp production on his daughters determines his value.
